

Mines and Miners of Cornwall

by A. K. Hamilton Jenkin

Index to personal names, compiled by Michael Messenger

Written by the late Dr A K Hamilton Jenkin and published between 1961 and 1970 in sixteen volumes, Mines and Miners of Cornwall contains a vast amount of information about Cornwall's metal mines, mainly the smaller and more obscure sites. Whilst later research has overtaken some details it remains a valuable source for mining history. An excellent index to the 3,500 or so mines mentioned was produced by the late Geoffrey Ordish and published by the Federation of Old Cornwall Societies. I have now indexed all personal names and hope this may be of use to researchers.

Very little editorial judgement has been exercised and names are recorded as they appear in the books. It should be borne in mind that the same name may refer to two or more people, particularly in the dynasties of the Cornish mining families and of the gentry. I have included titles where shown but not all Captains are mine captains; there are nautical and military types also. The names mentioned are of many occupations; miners, mine captains and engineers, agents, adventurers (shareholders or investors in modern parlance), mineral lords, landowners and their agents, mineral collectors and mineralogists, farmers, and friends and forebears of the author. There are comparatively few miners and most get a mention due to death or accident.

Each entry consists of a roman numeral, which is the volume number, followed by the page number(s) in that volume. I am reasonably confident as to the accuracy of the index but would be glad of any corrections and comments.
